The FOIL shapes are inspired by the Streamline styletypical of the 30s and by the car bodies of the 50sand 60s, when studies on aerodynamics generatedsoft and elegant silhouettes for cars.The link with the contemporary era comes naturallyin the ultra-modern nautical appendages that allowthe new generation of sailboats to sail above water.A reinterpretation of the cylindrical tap, the archetype of tapware, reinterpretedand updated with an attentive study on the dynamics of curvature. A dedicated showerhead has been created for this series with aspecial shape with rounded corners. In FOIL there is no single curvature radius, as with traditional taps: the bodyand spout have two different curvatures. The body consists of two differentcircular arcs on the front and back, and the same solution has been adopted forthe spout. This confluence of curves generates a dynamic thrust that gives thespout's end a soft, almost semi-elliptical radius, even more evident in the leverthat is stretched diagonally and outwards making it easy to use.
